DELFI

Catalogue SimonCollezione

Year of production 1969

Two monolithic bases. Top in stone or float glass held in place by brass axle boxes and nylon supports. Delfi is the revision of a 1930's Rationalist table by Marcel Breuer, which Carlo Scarpa worked on in 1968 changing it with the help of Breuer himself. A further evolution of the Delfi table with a crystal top, was designed in 2009 by Tobia Scarpa.

Marcel Breuer

This German designer and architect who was originally from Hungary, enrolled at the Bauhaus School when he was just 18. Four years later he had become one of its main teachers. In charge of its furniture section, Breuer encouraged students to look at how furniture and furnishing could be industrially manufactured, tackling the relative technological and stylistic problems with a through and methodological approach. Meeting with Marcel Breuer was one of the most important moments in Gavina's life.
